

New Location

Aviation Training Center ZRH

Stücheli Architekten

Under One Roof

From December 2019, pilots and cabin crews will be trained at the new LAT location in Glattbrugg. Covering an area of 11,000 square meters, the new Lufthansa Aviation Training Center unites the complete infrastructure of an aviation training center under one roof, including the Flight School and Assessment Center. The new facility, where approximately 12,000 students annually complete their training, is located a 5-minute tram ride from Zurich Airport and replaces the previous location at Balsberg.

The building is set on 160 foundation pillars, which were drilled into the underlying rock at a depth of 30 meters. Seven state-of-the-art flight simulators with technical rooms and flexible work stations offer everything that meets today's requirements for leading-edge airline training. In another hall there are five fully equipped cabin trainers for cabin crew training. In addition, there are workshop rooms, focus, training and briefing rooms as well as a 24/7 cafeteria and catering area, which can be used for mobile work.
